

Shaheen Vora

Recipient of award, by Indo American Cancer Network, Shaheen Vora, had volunteered in 2005 to donate Peripheral Stem Cell (PBSC) and five years later the Bone Marrow Registry called her saying that she could be a match for a 32-year-old mother of two. Shaheen, who runs her own business, is deadly scared of needles, but for this noble cause, found courage and time to visit MD Anderson Hospital for further tests and was elated when told that she was a good match.

Shaheen has lost three female members of her own family, and encourages everyone, especially in the Asian Community to register for Bone Marrow donation, as it is a very gratifying feeling, that someday you could save some one's life.
